

Abstract

The present invention provides a method for efficiently creating assemblies. The present invention also provides a web-based system for scientists to interact with a computer to implement the method. Further the scientist is able to upload and download information to and from the method to and from a database. The present invention also provides an efficient hardware architecture to implement the method.